

Net Fishing

Paxton House has one of the last remaining netting stations on the Tweed, and still uses the traditional way of netting using a coble or small boat. The salmon are tagged and released back into the river.

START TIMES

Visitors are welcome to come along to watch the netting, learn about the history, traditions and conservation. Times are approximate, depending on the tide. If you are coming along especially to see the netting, please check with Paxton House on the day, as netting may be cancelled if conditions aren't suitable.
